

Shape Station is a gentle, whimsical exploration of shapes and colours. Blue circles, green rectangles and a mischievous yellow square that can change into a duck.

This calm does not last long. When Mike has to take a nap before the real show can start, an orange Alien decides that Mike's blanket of circles is just what she needs to keep warm back on her planet. After a blanket tug-o-war the Alien and blanket are spirited away into outer space.

But this is no ordinary blanket. This is young Mike's favourite blanket in the whole universe. To get it back there is only one course of action. With the help of several triangles Mike must build a space ship out of his bed, put on his space helmet and travel the Galaxy in search of his much loved blanket.

After travelling the galaxy, Mike finds his beloved blanket but now there is another big problem. It is now the orange Alien's favourite blanket too.

Shape Station is a beautiful show for pre-schoolers with questions to answer, problems to solve and imagination to explore.
